Mamta Lulla Western Review

Biking shorts, helmets and bikes were visible all over the Omniplex parking lot on Sept. 13 as the DV100 Race or Ride got underway. About 120 volunteers made the event possible for cyclists taking part in the third annual event, which is a fundraiser for the Drayton Valley Community Foundation. This year's event included not just the traditional 100 kilometre course, but a new 40 kilometre course as well. To see more photos turn to pg. 2.

Mamta Lulla Western Review

RCMP officers took some time to answer some of the questions by the Drayton Valley community, along with touching on some of their concerns at an interactive session held on Sept. 11. Another similar session, which will have a Crown prosecutor present may take place in November.

RCMP address crime concerns

Property crime on the rise in some parts of Alberta, including Drayton Valley

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

Drayton Valley RCMP wanted to set the record straight for all those who have been active on social media recently saying crime is on a rise in the area, by hosting an interactive session for the community at the MacKenzie Conference Centre on Sept. 11.

"I want to make sure some of the misconceptions are clarified. Crime is on the rise a bit, but not as much as portrayed on social media. And I want them to hear that we're doing a lot to fight with the tools that we have," said Sgt. Chris Delisle, acting detachment commander.

A similar presentation and question/answer session held in the Violet Grove area had a successful outcome and as a result Town of Drayton Valley and the RCMP got in touch to see if the community here could benefit from a similar session as well.

"A few people had some concerns, expressed them on social media and the Town approached me saying, why don't we take an evening, and talk about stats that are available, address some questions that you have and they have, talk a bit about how they can be involved in order to assist in crime fighting job that we do. So that's what we're doing tonight," said Delisle.

He added that the growing trend in Drayton Valley is property crime, but it's a trend that is visible in other parts of the province, as well according to the stats that were shared in the meeting.

"The big crime trend in Drayton Valley is property crime so what we're talking is theft, vandalism, theft of motor vehicles, break and enter, this is what keeps us busy the most and it is also the most difficult one to solve," he said.

He added that recently some of the "big ticket" items like quads have been stolen and hence some concerns are being raised.

"The crime trend has changed to bigger ticket items, a few quads have been stolen, the difference between lawn mower and quad stolen, people get more upset when they find their quad being stolen versus a lawn mower. So we have a little bit more big ticket items that are stolen so maybe that's prompted some of the comments on social media," he explained.

At the session in Brazeau County, a Crown prosecutor helped answer some questions and concerns as well, Delisle said another session that will take place in November will also welcome a Crown prosecutor.

He wanted the public to know that the RCMP is well aware of the ongoing crime rate in the community.

He added that crime fighting becomes a lot easier when the RCMP sees support from the members of the public.

"Because our judicial system works on a rule that everybody is innocent until proven guilty, so we need to prove that someone stole something, we need to prove that someone did the break and enter, but when did they steal and break and enter? When there is no one around to look so it's hard to find who is doing those crimes. So the more people we get involved, the more people we have looking out for each other, the more chance we have being successful with this, so that's basically what we need to talk about," he explained.

Residents who came out were part of the discussion by raising different questions that Delisle answered along with some other officers who were present at the meeting.

A short presentation by the Drayton Valley Citizens on Patrol Society also took place to educate people on what the volunteer group does to help curb crime in the area.

Revised policy offers flexibility

New name, less stringent guidelines

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

A change in the name and a number of revisions made a policy regarding outdoor skating rinks more palatable for town councillors last week.

The policy, originally presented as the Neighbourhood Outdoor Skating Rinks Policy, was tabled at the Aug. 27 council meeting after concerns from councillors that it was too rigid in its guidelines. In the past two weeks administration made some adjustments to address those concerns.

"I do appreciate the revisions and that they're less stringent," said Coun. Nicole Nadeau, last week.

Director of Community Services Annette Driessen highlighted some of the changes for councillors. Administration decided to adjust the name of the policy to allow more flexibility, she said, noting the term 'rinks' is associated more exclusively with playing hockey. The new name — Neighbourhood Outdoor Skating Surface Policy — now reflects the range of activities that can take place on the ice.

The original proposal would have seen hockey and hockey equipment prohibited from any neighbourhood skating surfaces developed. The revised policy sets out that hockey will be permitted on skating rinks in areas where it can be safely accommodated, depending on size, location, etc., while some rinks will be approved for skating only.

Under the new policy stormwater management ponds will be cleared and maintained by public works staff if conditions are safe and favourable for use by the public. The original proposal removed the use of the ponds for skating activities due to possible public safety and liability issues.

Residents interested in creating a skating surface on public land will need to apply to the Town of Drayton Valley and enter into an agreement with the municipality. Rinks will only be permitted in approved areas. Residents who take on the task of a rink will be responsible for creating, monitoring and maintaining it to standards set out in the policy. The municipality will provide signage for the rinks and public works staff will inspect them periodically.

Last week councillors said they appreciated the flexibility built into the revised policy, allowing for passive recreation, while still keeping public safety in mind. Decisions made by council have to consider public safety first, noted Nadeau.

They were satisfied with the revisions administration had made to the original proposal.

"I'm really happy to see this come forward like this," said Coun. Fayrell Wheeler.

The policy will come into effect for this winter.

Still waiting for action on tourism

Last week members of the Drayton Valley Hospitality and Tourism Association were in attendance at the joint council meeting to try and get a sense of where the municipalities are sitting when it comes to tourism.

For approximately two years local hotels that are part of the hospitality association have been collecting a Destination Marketing Fee of two per cent on rooms they rent. That money stays with the local association to be used to promote tourism initiatives. Along with putting money into some local events and initiatives the association has also looked at ways to further promote tourism in the area, by looking at gaps in service, said association chair Dan Sullivan. They've come this far, but don't want to go much further without the partnership of the municipalities that will play a large role, and reap a large portion of the benefit, of building a tourism industry in the region.

He was asking councillors if there would be an interest in partnering to explore how to move forward with a tourism plan.

Back in 2012 the Town of Drayton Valley and Brazeau County split the cost to hire consultants to develop just such a plan. Consultation was done, the plan was completed and nothing happened. There were some concerns over branding that was presented at the time, but the councils of the day gave consensus that the plan itself was going in the right direction. Approximately 18 months and two new councils later there was a closed door session for councils followed by another consultation where tourism stakeholders basically repeated themselves and encouraged councils to move forward in some way.

Since then, publicly, there's been brief mention of the creation of a regional tourism authority, including at last week's meeting, but nothing has come forward as of yet to put structure to that.

In the meantime the hospitality association has been working on its own, tourism operators and stakeholders have been working on their own and the existing tourism entity — Brazeau Regional Tourism — remains restricted in what it can do with limited resources, supported mainly by funding from Brazeau County and no financial support at all from the Town of Drayton Valley.

Sullivan told councillors that moving forward as a collective makes more sense and that the only way to get things going is to actually start taking action. It's a simple concept.

If the municipalities are looking at forming a tourism authority the hospitality association shouldn't just know about it, they, and the funds they have available to them, should be a part of it.

If tourism isn't something councils can seriously commit to right now they should say so instead of leaving the issue in apparent limbo.

Good things are coming

There and Back
Courtney Whalen

One of the best things about this job is getting the chance to learn about new services coming the area and then helping get the word out to the community.

Lately there's been a number of great things happening that I think are really going to benefit a lot of individuals and families in the area. Facilities and services like the ones being introduced to help strengthen the social fabric of a region, making it a healthier, safer and more pleasant place to live. Creating a community that offers not only the physical infrastructure necessary, but the social structure that attracts new residents and keeps existing residents here is vital.

While 'sustainable' was the catchphrase in vogue for the past few years, the Town of Drayton Valley now seems to have outgrown that term and is showing more favour for creating a 'resilient' community.

Whatever term you use the goal remains the same — build programs and services that will serve residents and foster growth and vibrancy in the region. That can be done through town-supported initiatives, but also through those outside the purviews of the town corporation.

One of those poised to make a big impact on the area is the Drayton Valley Primary Care Network (PCN). The PCN was announced last winter by local doctors and health officials. Since then work has been going on in the background to get ready to launch programs that will focus on three areas; mental health, chronic disease management and family planning and obstetrical care. This fall the mental health program will be rolling out to provide access to free mental health to residents. I'll have more on this story in next week's Western Review, but it's something that is very exciting.

Mental health is becoming such a huge component in the overall health and wellbeing of people of all ages that this service will be welcomed and hopefully well used when it gets up and running.

One of the other additions to our community that I'm really happy to see is the completion of Rotary House. The Rotary Club of Drayton Valley project is complete and tenants are getting settled.

The building is going to be home to a wide variety of community service organizations including Brighter Futures, FCSS, McMan Family and Youth Services, Boys and Girls Club of Drayton Valley and others with common goals of serving families in the region.

I have seen the benefits that have come out of similar buildings in another area where I've worked and I have no doubt we'll see the same happen here.

Being housed in the same facility will allow these valuable organizations better access to each other to look at ways to coordinate programming, work together on initiatives, share resources and collaborate on how best to serve the individuals and families who will be coming through the doors. I have no doubt we're going to see some great innovations come forward as a result of Rotary House.

Those are just two examples of the work happening to make this a healthy, safe and happy place to live. Sometimes it's easy to focus on the negative so much that we forget to look up and see some of the great things being offered. It's important to take a balanced view to get a true picture of the place we call home.

Adding to the abuse and pain

Lesley's Lessons
Lesley Allan

That star shouldn't have had a window display. Those homeowners shouldn't have spent their money on such nice items. That's what they get for shopping online.

Do those statements sound a little ridiculous to you? Of course they do because it makes no sense to blame the victim, at least for certain crimes some might say.

Let me start by stating it is NEVER okay to blame the victim, no matter what the crime and no matter what the outcome. Yes there are ways victims can prevent things from happening, but ultimately the only person truly in charge is the one committing the crime, and they are the only ones who should be criticized, scrutinized, and shunned.

Last week much of the western world was abuzz when on Monday the Baltimore Ravens terminated Ray Rice's contract following the second and third release, and, of extended versions of a video that saw the 206 lb. running back punch his then fiancé in the face, knocking her out and then dragging her out of an elevator, not seeming to care much about explaining the situation to those on the floor.

Now married, the video of the couple's dispute was released much earlier but only showed Rice dragging the unconscious body of his future wife out of the elevator. This was in May and all that was done at the time was a two game suspension despite the NFL's rule that domestic abuse will not be tolerated. Is it possible they turned a blind eye for the highly popular athlete?

Since the release of the latest videos Rice's wife Janay has come forward publicly and made comments that have once again turned her into a victim, but this time of bullying and verbal abuse at the hands of the public.

Using Instagram as her choice in coming out, Janay criticized the public and media for turning her life upside down, taking away something her husband worked so hard for, and making life feel like a "horrible nightmare."

Finishing off her post the one thing many people harped on was her statement: "Just know we will continue to grow & show the world what real love is!"

Since that post, highly critical comments about her have been made, calling her stupid for stay, questioning why she would marry him, and some even saying she's staying for the money, despite the abuse.

Without knowing these highly critical and judgmental individuals I feel confident in saying that none, or at least the large majority of them, know nothing of what it's like to be in an abusive relationship.

And this sentiment was echoed when women who have been in abusive situations rallied behind Janay, stood up to the bullies and shed light on the complexity that is an abusive relationship, which most often are not just physical but often much more emotional.

"He taught me I was worthless, couldn't do any better. Taken me 25 years to unlearn that," tweeted one woman, using the #whyistayed hashtag.

"#whyistayed because he isolated me from friends and family and I had no one to turn to when the abuse started," shared another woman on Twitter.

From emotional abuse and belittling, to threats against families, and even threats of suicide, there is no one way to describe how abusive relationships impact the lives of those living them.

However there are words to describe abuse itself— unacceptable, and when it comes to those criticizing those who are living it and suffering through it your words are adding to the punches and adding to that feeling of isolation and despair that often keep women in the life of those who hurt them.

Leave the labels behind and see what you find

Mental Health matters

Working with a group of students this week, I had them brainstorm a list of the different labels and stereotypes that students have in their school.

They came up with a long list of labels that students put on each other, some of the names I had heard of and others were new to me. But it was interesting as they came up with their list, the negative connotations that each of the labels seemed to have. To put a spin on the labels I challenged the students to think of positive characteristics of each label.

Does being a loner need to be a negative thing? Does the person labelled a loner really have no friends? Maybe the person labelled a loner chooses to be alone sometimes. Maybe they are an introvert that has a few friends that they like to hang out with, and prefers to spend time on their own without others around.

Is being a cheerleader a negative thing? The way that they are portrayed in movies often gives them a bad rap, but these are girls, who are full of dedication, work hard, are fit and are amazing team players.

Where do these labels come from and what do they do to children in school and even adults in our society?

Labels tend to make us forget who we really are — human. We all bleed the same, breathe the same, hurt the same and cry the same. We all, regardless of what label we have on us, feel sadness, anger and happiness. Labels make these commonalities disappear and we segregate ourselves into our own separate silos, interacting with people who have similar labels as ourselves, and not wanting to venture far from this sense of safety and security.

Leaving, or trying to break away from, the labels that we have on ourselves can be a challenge. Growing up I was labelled by some as a 'snob' or 'stuck up.' In reality, I was shy, enjoyed the small group of friends I had and did not really want to get caught up in what everyone else was doing. Was it hard to break away from this label? It was a definite challenge because these labels tend to stick and you begin to believe this is how everyone sees you, and what would they think if you tried to change? But with each step, increased confidence and new relationships that you build, the label becomes less important.

There is a wide variety of labels that are found in our children's hallways, our community and our world. Our relationships, our behaviours, the way that we treat others and the way they treat us is driven by the labels that we may possess.

Let's challenge ourselves and try to put these labels aside and look at each other as equals, as human beings. Maybe our world would get a little closer, we would be more willing to reach out and help someone, and begin to discover who we truly are.

Around the water cooler...

Well, we got a preview of what's to come last week! Hopefully everyone has recovered from our brief brush with winter last week and is appreciating the sun and warmer temperatures even more!

This week we want to send birthday wishes out to Mike Kos, who blows out his candles on Sept. 18. Wishing you a great day and year ahead, Mike!

We want to send belated congratulations out to Justin and Rosalie Rendflesh. They tied the knot last weekend at a beautiful resort in Fernie, B.C. We understand it was a great party, and the perfect kick off to this newest chapter in their life adventure! Lots of love and congratulations to them!

We want to say 'great job' to everyone who "stepped up" to help raise money for the Drayton Valley Health Services Foundation CT4DV campaign last week at Community Registration Night. Thanks to Telus for setting up the charitable opportunity where 20 cents will be donated for every step that was taken. Big kudos too, to our friends at the Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services who got in on the action to encourage more participation to raise more money! The step challenge was also on site at last weekend's DV100 and will be at the Sept. 27 Zombie Run, which Telus is sponsoring. Once we have totals for money raised we will pass it along!

Speaking of the DV100, what another great event they had! Congrats to all the organizers, volunteers and participants in this year's race and ride. It's a great promotion and fundraiser for the Drayton Valley Community Foundation, which is a fabulous organization to have in our community. Way to go!

Do you want to get a head start on your Christmas cheer? Let the Evergreen Farmer's Market help you! Next week the market is hosting its annual Christmas in September event on Sept. 24, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. You're guaranteed to find some great things to get your Christmas shopping started!

While we have your attention. If you represent an organization, club or activity, please turn to page 47 and review our community events listings. If you notice any information that needs to be updated please call Courtney at 780-542-5380 or send her an e-mail at courtney.whalen@summedia.ca.

That's it, that's all for another edition of the water cooler.

Enjoy a wonderfully warm week!

Drayton Valley RCMP briefs

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

DAY DESIGNATED FOR COMMUNITY CHECKS

The Drayton Valley RCMP will be scheduling one day a week to deal with community requests such as criminal record checks, vulnerable sector checks and volunteer checks.

Cst. Andrew Grainger said the detachment will be processing these requests between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. every Wednesday. Those coming in on other days will be asked to return then.

Accepting the requests is being scheduled to a specific day in order to streamline the process. An officer will be assigned to handle the requests on Wednesdays, eliminating the need for some people to return several times for their record checks when an officer isn't immediately available.

THIEF ACTS QUICKLY

A man had money stolen from his wallet while he left his vehicle to go and pay for fuel.

On Sept. 6 the man got gas at a local gas station and went inside to pay. When he came back outside he noticed someone had gone through and stolen items from his wallet.

DRIVER TICKETED IN COLLISION

Drayton Valley RCMP issued a ticket to a driver after a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of Hwy. 22 and 50 St. north on Sept. 5.

The driver of one vehicle turned left into the path of an oncoming vehicle, resulting in a collision where the fire services were required to extricate a person from a vehicle and one person was taken to the hospital.

FUEL STOLEN

Fuel stored on a well site in the area of Hwy. 39 and Range Road 50 was stolen last week.

On Sept. 10 police received a report that 1,000 litres of diesel fuel had been taken.

The previous day RCMP were contacted about a side-by-side that had been stolen from a lease site. That OHV was recovered a short distance away.

CONSTRUCTION ZONE COMPLAINTS

Drayton Valley RCMP continue to receive complaints about drivers speeding and driving unsafely in the construction zone associated with the North Saskatchewan River bridge construction.

"People seem to be experiencing a lot of road rage," noted Cst. Andrew Grainger.

The construction zone extends from approximately Range Road 70 to just before Hwy. 620. Reduced speed limits are posted throughout, as crews are working.

DIG OUT THE SCRAPERS

Last week gave Drayton Valley and Brazeau County its first taste of frosty mornings.

Warmer temperatures may be in store this week, but RCMP are still reminding residents of the importance of completely clearing off their windshields after Jack Frost pays a visit.

Completely clearing windows of frost will ensure motorists have a full view of what's happening around them with other vehicles and pedestrians.

BE BEAR AWARE

RCMP are advising residents to be on the lookout for wildlife, after a black bear was reported in the area of River Ravine Estates last week. Police received reports of sightings on Sept. 9 and again on Sept. 11. Local fish and wildlife officers were aware of the bear, which seemed to show no fear of humans.

Residents are reminded to keep a close watch on young children and pets. Be sure not to leave out any food items that might attract bears or other wildlife closer to your home.

Drayton Valley council briefs

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

REZONING FOR PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT PASSES SECOND READING

An application to rezone a portion of land from residential to commercial didn't get a full endorsement from Drayton Valley councillors last week.

The rezoning, which would be the first step in a proposed development by Leduc Co-op that would include a gas bar, car wash, liquor store and other retail, received second reading last week. Councillors opted not to give full approval to the rezoning in order to give developers more time to address concerns raised by residents.

The proposed rezoning focuses on a portion of the vacant land behind Dodson Plaza and bordered by 46 Ave. and 47 St. (4503 46 Ave.) to allow for the development of commercial uses. The property is currently zoned general residential, where landowners had originally planned to build luxury condominiums. However, Rob MacIntosh told councillors last week that plan was not feasible, and would not have provided the type of housing currently most in demand in the community. Instead, the developer wants to build a commercial development on that portion of the site, with the intention of building high density residential housing on the remainder of the land.

The developers held a community open house and the Town of Drayton Valley held a public hearing on the application before considering second and third reading last week.

A number of residents were at the public hearing to express their concerns, including increased traffic in an already congested area, safety of students at the adjacent Evergreen Elementary School and the types of commercial businesses proposed, among others.

A number of letters in opposition, as well as several in support, of the proposal were also presented to council.

Coun. Nicole Nadeau noted feedback to council had those in opposition and those in favour in almost equal numbers.

MacIntosh told council that developers already know they will need to look at traffic management and mitigation, something that would need to be addressed even if the zoning wasn't changed.

"I'm really torn on this one," said Coun. Dean Shular. "I see some potential benefits, but I also see some concerns."

He also noted that the current application is for rezoning only, and doesn't give approval for the development as a whole. In fact, some of the commercial uses proposed are discretionary uses and would need to be approved by council before moving forward.

Coun. Debra Bossert made the motion to give the rezoning application second reading only, to give the developers more time to work to address some of the concerns raised. The majority of her colleagues present agreed. Coun. Nancy McClure opposed the motion and Coun. Graham Long and Mayor Glenn McLean were not present.

REZONING FOR NEW RESIDENTIAL GIVEN FIRST READING

A public hearing will be scheduled for a proposal to rezone a portion of land from institutional and public use to high density residential.

Last week Drayton Valley Town Council gave first reading to the rezoning bylaw for land adjacent to the Ignited Church and Valley Terrace condominiums (4008-47 St). If the rezoning is approved it would accommodate a proposal to develop a 20-unit duplex condominium complex on the land.

The developers will be required to host an open house prior to the public hearing.

Councillors were told last week that the land had been zoned for high density residential until 2010 when it was rezoned institutional and public use.

PROPOSED FOURPLEX GETS FIRST READING

A rezoning application that would allow for the construction of a fourplex on 49 St. was given first reading last week.

The application would see the property at 4729 49 St. rezoned from general residential district to medium density residential district.

Located just a few blocks from Little Lions Park as well as 50 St., Coun. Debra Bossert said she was happy to see the proposal coming forward.

"This, in my opinion, is a good place to increase density in our community."

POLICIES PUT IN PLACE

In another step toward the start of automated traffic enforcement in Drayton Valley, council approved four policies.

Last week the policies approved were:

— Automated Traffic Enforcement Program Policy

— Community Peace Officer Conduct Policy

— Handling Complaints and Administration of Discipline for Community Peace Officers Policy

— Automated Traffic Enforcement Records Policy

In order for automated traffic enforcement services to begin, the Town of Drayton Valley must allow for the employment of community peace officers, resulting in the necessity to adopt certain policies. The policies haven't previously been in place because community peace officers currently serving the town do so under a contract with Brazeau County.

COUNCIL APPROVES HOUSING COMMITTEE RFP

Following discussion at the joint council meeting on Sept. 8, Drayton Valley Town Council approved a recommendation from the Joint Housing Committee to issue a request for proposal to prepare a document outlining the roles and responsibility of a management authority for housing.

Councillors also supported creating a working relationship with Brazeau Seniors Foundation to look at that organization taking on an expanded role and serving as the management authority for market, non-market and social housing for Drayton Valley, Brazeau County and the Village of Breton. The RFP would require the successful applicant to develop a proposal outlining the parameters for Brazeau Seniors Foundation to take on the expanded role.

At the joint council meeting earlier in the week both councils heard that the province has indicated no new housing authorities will be created so the best way to move forward with the housing issue would be to work with Brazeau Seniors Foundation, which is already established as a housing authority.

OCTOBER IS BREAST CANCER AWARENESS

Last week Acting Mayor Dean Shular made two proclamations during town council.

In order to continue to raise awareness about breast cancer and the impact it has on women, men and their friends and family, October was declared Breast Cancer Awareness Month in Drayton Valley.

According to information from the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation breast cancer will affect 24,400 women and 210 men and their families this year. For more information go online to www.cbcf.org.

October is also the time to raise awareness about cerebral palsy, a neuromotor disability that affects body movement and muscle co-ordination. It is estimated that in Alberta more than 9,000 people are affected by cerebral palsy and that number is approximately 17 million people worldwide.

To raise awareness about the condition it was declared that Drayton Valley would recognize World Cerebral Palsy Day, which takes place on Oct. 1.

After four years of being an instrumental part of Communities in Bloom, co-chair Heather Rennison is stepping back from the organization. Above she's seen speaking during the 2012 judges tour.

It's not goodbye, it's see you later

Communities in Bloom co-chair steps back from volunteer organization

Lesley Allan
Western Review

After four years of hard work and dedication Drayton Valley Communities in Bloom (CIB) co-chair Heather Rennison is hanging up her pruning sheers to see where her dedication and love for the area takes her next.

"It's just time for me to branch out to other things," she shares. "I thoroughly enjoyed my stay but you know you get to a point where you sometimes go through the volunteer burnout. It's a very physical thing the Communities in Bloom and it's difficult to get the volunteers, so I just think it's time for me to spread my wings and do some other things."

It was the end of the summer when Rennison made it known that this would be her final year with the program, and reflecting on how the hard work has impacted the community, as well as her own life, she is grateful for everything that has happened over the last four years.

"I've been a gardener most of my life, even as a kid I liked being in the garden with my folks, but I learned so much about our community, about sustainability, about trees, I mean things that we just took for granted and many people still do," she shares. "I just learned so much and it was just a hugely rewarding volunteer position, it really was. To watch this community bloom, not just in flowers but in community spirit, it was exhilarating for me, it truly was."

"I watched this community come to life and it was so gratifying and I've made some amazing friends along the way," she adds.

Sharing how the experience has been working with Rennison, CIB co-chair Nicole Nadeau says that the last four years has built a great friendship with an incredible woman, and that the work done by Rennison is something that cannot go unrecognized as much would not have been possible without her.

"Without Heather it wouldn't have been possible, honestly," shares Nadeau. "Her dedication, her heart, her community, she's a pretty amazing individual."

"Without her we could never have gained the success and recognition, and respect that we did," she added. "Just her heart, it's been amazing and she couldn't possibly be replaced, she's just a wonderful woman with a wonderful heart and loves her town."

This love for her community is why even though she has stepped back from her leadership role within CIB, Rennison will continue to be involved with some of the projects that group plans to continue on with.

"I will be involved to some degree, I would like to see the cenotaph mural restoration to its completion," she says. "I have a few little things in my back pocket, but I won't be directly involved with Communities in Bloom like attending their meetings."

"I want to take a little bit of a break," she continues, explaining that she will always volunteer in some capacity. "It's been a very busy four years in the summer and I would like to take a summer to enjoy my family, but you know what funny things happen and you often get pulled into some other things. So I'm just going to sort of let the cards fall where they may."

Despite Rennison's decisions to leave and how much she will be missed, Nadeau says the local CIB initiative will continue on and although it might not be in the same capacity the volunteer based group will continue to work in bettering the community.

"It's impossible to fill Heather's shoes, there's no way, that mould was broken," she shares. "We continue on in a different direction and we will probably be reducing our overall commitment."

"It will continue on absolutely and we still have the support of the community and we still have a wonderful volunteer group, but we couldn't have been as successful without her heart, her ingenuity, and just her spirit really, that's what we're going to miss around the table, but we know absolutely that her heart is always there and her support," Nadeau adds.

Getting healthy and active to support the community

Breton to host a day of outdoor fun in support of community centre

Lesley Allan
Western Review

It's a day dedicated to getting active, not only for good health but also for the benefit of the community.

For the first time Sept. 20 will mark the date of the B-Town Balloon Fun Run, Walk or Stroll, an event that's not only getting people out and active but raising funds for the Breton Community Centre Project.

> I'm just really hoping that people will take an interest in their health and make active living a part of their daily lives...
> — Cassie Kreil

"I've never done a 5 km (run) and I'm really into fitness, as is one of my good friends, and it just seemed like we couldn't get anywhere to do it," shares Cassie Kreil, volunteer organizer of the B-Town event. "So I though it would be fun if we could do something here in Breton where we didn't actually have to go anywhere, but also my really good friend is on the fundraising committee for the hall so I kind of put those two ideas together."

Not just another walk where participants usually only have their personal drive to spur them on, the B-Town fun run will help to encourage families to get out and go for a walk in a safe environment, with added fun for the children.

"There are so many different types of fun runs now, like there's the Mud Hero that they do in Red Deer, there's Run or Dye where they throw paint on you as you're running, and those are getting really good responses because they're something really different," explains Kreil as to why she decided on a balloon run. "We wanted to target everyone so we wanted people to also get their children involved, so we thought kids love balloons and it was something that we felt we could handle doing and it would help motivate kids to go to the next station because they get another balloon."

With two different distances people can take part in, three or six kilometres, Kreil is hoping that the event as a whole will encourage people to see the fun that can come with getting active and helping, then incorporating it into their daily lives.

"I'm just really hoping that people will take an interest in their health and make active living a part of their daily lives and this is just a really good opportunity for the community to do it together," she says.

Taking that healthy focus beyond the walk and into lunch organizers didn't want to do just the same barbecue you see with many fundraisers.

"We wanted to think outside the bun because a lot of events that I have ever gone to has been hamburgers and hotdogs," Kreil explains. "Our whole day we wanted to have more of a healthy feel to it, so with starting with the walk, or run, and then having a healthier lunch after instead of grease."

With health not being the only focus of the day, organizers wanted to create several opportunities for people to get out and socialize with friends, family and neighbours. In addition to the walk/run and lunch the day will also consist of a block party, as well as a trade show that won't just feature products, but community organizations, groups, and activities.

"We just wanted to have something fun afterwards that you could bring your family to and enjoy the rest of the day without having to end the day right after lunch," says Kreil as to why the event is so much more than just its name.

Taking place at the Breton Golf Course, registration for the even can be done anytime by visiting the Village of Breton office. Individuals interested in taking part can also register the day of the event starting at 9:30 a.m., with the six-kilometre fun run starting at 10 a.m. and the three-kilometre fun run starting at 10:30a.m.

For more information on the B-Town Balloon Fun Run, Walk or Stroll visit www.village.breton.ab.ca, call (780) 696-3636, or find the event on Facebook by searching "B-Town Balloon Fun Run."

STAR Catholic installing external defibrillators in all its schools

Local school helps bring Automated External Defibrillators to STAR Catholic facilities

Vince Burke
Lacombe Globe

As part of its efforts to beef up first aid around its division St. Thomas Aquinas (STAR) Catholic School Division will be installing Automated External Defibrillators (AEDs) in every school in the jurisdiction, and it's thanks to a push from a local teacher.

STAR Catholic has two schools in Drayton Valley — St. Anthony School and Holy Trinity Academy — and board chair John Tomkinson said the move is centred on safety.

"The decision by the board of trustees surrounding the automatic external defibrillators is really connected in principle to our understanding of safe and caring schools. When we look at the needs of the students, staff and community — because we like to extend that all the way across the groups we serve — we felt it was a necessary part of our emergency planning," he said.

"It's really reflecting the direction many divisions are going, including the province and the federal government in terms of care and healthy response to people in need."

Although there have been cases in Alberta where a student suffered cardiac trauble after a sporting event or team practice, Tomkinson said no incident has happened in STAR Catholic and the move isn't solely for students.

"Part of the board's discussion and part of the board's decision was in order to come up with procedures and protocols in order to expand first aid training as part of the emergency preparedness plan.

"The entire board is committed and has directed administration to get as much as possible, if not all staff trained in first aid, including CPR and the correct use of AEDs," he said.

"We are going to be rolling out first aid delivery programs division-wide in the spring and fall to increase the numbers beyond the quotas and recommendations from Alberta Occupational Health and Safety in order to take it up a notch."

The process started when those from the Catholic schools in Drayton Valley first approached the board with the idea.

"This is a really proactive stance by the school board. It has been something we have talked about for quite some time. One of the initiators of the conversation was our school facilities in Drayton Valley who have a tremendous first aid program. All the students and staff on board there are really embracing it and it's part of the education delivery out there," said Tomkinson.

"They came forward with the initial proposal, which we discussed and found out some more information. To be good stewards of the resources given to us by the ratepayers across the division we wanted to make sure we were in line with and safe with liability issues and that costs were going to be responsibly used. We took a look at the first aid deliver across the division at the schools from Lacombe to Beaumont and looked at the increasing rate of individuals trained with first aid and felt it was a natural fit for our communities."

Already teaching Holy Trinity Academy students the importance of first aid training, teacher Ian McCourt says although they don't expect students to use the system because teachers will also be trained, it's important for them to understand how the AEDs function in case they are ever in a situation where its use is required.

Teaching first aid both in and outside of school McCourt says that as technology changes it's important for people to understand it and take advantage of it to save lives.

"I'm a first aid instructor and so I teach this on the weekends to people that need it, probably about four years ago they added the AED into the instructor's course because it's becoming more common," said McCourt. "I was excited (when AEDs were said to be going into schools) I've been trying to do this for four or five years now, so I was pretty happy. (People) should feel a little bit safer knowing that it's in the building."

Tomkinson said first aid and by extension the training on AEDs is an important safety measure for the whole community.

"When we look at the dignity of all human life, I think that just because we are a school serving young children that doesn't necessitate the look through the lens of only the children. We also have staff, very often we have community events, Christmas concerts, you have grandmas and grandpas," he said.

"Looking at the value of human life through the Catholic lens, just limiting it to the children that we serve in the eight to four (o'clock) daily doesn't really examine the community that we serve in a greater context.

"Ultimately there is always a risk, whether they be children or infants with health conditions to staff to community events and sporting events. Many of our facilities are utilized by different community groups after hours to get the best utilization that we can. These are all things that are taken into consideration when we look at a program like this."

Joint council briefs

DEVELOPER MAKES PITCH FOR EXPEDITED UPGRADE

Moving up the completion of the portion of 62 St. that connects to Range Road 75 would alleviate congestion in a busy area of Drayton Valley and give industrial traffic another exit from industrial parks in that area, Rob Macintosh told joint councils last week.

Macintosh, representing Sawyer Developments Ltd., was making the case in front of Drayton Valley and Brazeau County councillors during a joint meeting held on Sept. 8.

Currently, the unpaved road in the town limits serves businesses in local industrial parks including Bohnella and Westview. With plans to develop additional lands for industrial uses Macintosh was asking councillors to consider moving the upgrading of 62 St. up in the capital plan. He noted Brazeau County has already undertaken work to make improvements to Range Road 75, Range Road 80 and Township Road 494. By upgrading and paving the approximately one mile stretch of 62 St., Macintosh told councils he believes it will take traffic away from the 50 Ave./Hwy. 22 area that is already congested with residential and business traffic.

Noting that the corridor was identified as an important component for regional transportation in a traffic study conducted by Genivar (now WSP) a few years ago, Macintosh was requesting councils consider making the upgrade to 62 St. a high priority.

Brazeau County Reeve Pat Vos noted the road is on a joint infrastructure map as a future project.

However, Macintosh said the scheduled project date wasn't until 2017, which he said is too far in the future.

Acknowledging the completion of the road would aid in current and future development his company is involved in, Macintosh said it would also serve the entire industrial area, by allowing traffic to take 62 St. and Range Road 75 to Township Road 494 where it could either make its way to Hwy. 22 or trawel up Range Road 80 to Hwy. 621.

HOTEL ASSOCIATION SEEKS MOVEMENT ON TOURISM

Members of the local hotel and hospitality association want to see some action on diversifying the draw of the region into the area of tourism.

Association chair Dan Sullivan and Rose Lattman were in front of Drayton Valley, Brazeau County and Village of Breton councillors to talk about moving forward with a tourism plan for the area. The association was formed approximately two years ago when five hotels in the area started collecting a destination marketing fee on rooms rented. The two per cent fee, charged in addition to a provincially mandated four per cent tourism levy, stays local to fund tourism initiatives.

With a base of funds accumulated, Sullivan said the association has been able to support some local events and initiatives geared to tourism, but would like to work with the municipalities to move forward on a plan for creating, fostering and promoting tourism in the region.

Joint council briefs

JOINT COUNCIL from pg. 17

If we join forces we can move forward with that vision," he said.

When the economy plummeted in 2008 Sullivan said approximately 85 per cent of hotel business in the area dried up with nothing to replace it. The hotel association wants to see something in place to help guard against a similar situation in the future. That would include addressing gaps in the area, looking at existing businesses and the potential for future tourism development.

"We want to start now and prepare those markets," he said.

Sullivan was interested in forming a task force to look at how to move forward.

Mayor Glenn McLean noted that tourism is something being looked at by the municipalities.

"I know that there are ongoing discussions about the creation of a tourism authority," he told Sullivan.

Brazeau County CAO Marco Schoeninger said work is continuing on the potential creation of a tourism authority for the area. That process stems from a regional tourism study that was initiated jointly approximately two years ago.

Mayor Glenn McLean asked Sullivan how the association could bring other hotels in the area on board with the organization and implementing the DMF.

Sullivan said the best way to convince the holdouts was to show them a completed plan that demonstrates the benefits they will receive from involvement.

In addition to helping some organizations, the association has also looked at a tourism assessment, but Sullivan said they haven't undertaken everything they would like to because they didn't want to proceed without a partnership with the municipalities.

"We do need to push it forward, that's how things get done," he said.

The goal of the association is not to have hotels and tourism businesses competing against each other, but to increase the size of the market so there's enough business for everyone, he noted.

HOUSING COMMITTEE EXPLORES RELATIONSHIP WITH BRAZEAU SENIORS FOUNDATION

Looking to move forward to address the issue of accessible and affordable housing in the region the Joint Housing Committee was looking for support to work with Brazeau Seniors Foundation.

Last week Annette Driessen director of community services for the Town of Drayton Valley, and Rick Ennis, director of community services for Brazeau County were in front of joint council to talk about moving the housing issue forward. They were looking for support, in principle, to work with the Brazeau Seniors Foundation to look at expanding that organization to become the regional housing authority.

Driessen said during research done by the committee into forming a regional housing authority they were in contact with the housing division of Municipal affairs. They were told the province is looking to consolidate authorities and that new housing authorities would not be approved. With Brazeau Seniors Foundation already established as a housing authority, administration from local municipalities met with the foundation to see if it would be interested in exploring an expanded role.

"We don't have to create a housing authority, the housing authority is already there," said Driessen, noting it's the management structure that would need to be created.

The Joint Housing Committee was looking for joint councils endorsement to move forward with a request for proposal (RFP) to have a third party work with them to establish terms and conditions on how Brazeau Seniors Foundation could fulfill the role of an expanded regional housing authority.

Councils agreed to further discuss the issue individually. At its meeting on Sept. 10 Town of Drayton Valley Council gave its approval to move ahead with the RFP.

COUNCILS CONTINUE TO WORK ON COOPERATION

During the joint council meeting on Sept. 8, Brazeau County CAO Marco Schoeninger gave a brief report on some of the outcomes of a facilitated workshop attended by both Town of Drayton Valley and Brazeau County councils on Sept. 4. Facilitated by Gordon McIntosh the session was used to identify areas of mutual interest and brainstorm how to move forward on those collaboratively.

A press release issued later that day said numerous initiatives were discussed during the strategy session, including roads, water and sewer, animal control, the municipal airport and Clean Energy and Technology Centre, among others.

At the end of the session it was decided to create a regional cooperation protocol to provide guidance to councils as they move forward to best serve residents of the region. The release stated the hope is that by working together the municipalities will also have more success in leveraging funding from higher levels of government.

Frank Maddock Warriors are ready to compete in their first year as a 12-man league team with other teams that have a lot more experience. ABOVE: The Warriors lost their first match two weeks ago against the Peace Wapiti Titans 50-6

Tough season for Warriors

Some veteran players are injured while younger players may need more practice

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

After losing their first 12-man game Frank Maddock Warriors players are going back to basics with determination and just as much practice to match.

"We always go into every season desiring to win a championship. I always prepare my boys, that's what we're going for. We're going to win. The reality is that yes this is a brand new league. We were very successful last year, we were undefeated and won a championship and things like that," said coach Tim Richholt.

The Frank Maddock Warriors played their first 12-man league on Sept. 5 a change from the 9-man league they have played in last year.

Richholt said many of those players that won last year have graduated and the ones playing this year know it won't be an easy season.

"We graduated so many of those veteran players (from the 9-man league) that this year over two-thirds of the team was gone. So a lot of (players are) inexperienced that way. But they understand, they know the calibre of competition they will be going against and they understand that with some guys being injured and not as many veterans, it'll be one of those years that it will be a little bit tough, but we practice the same way," he added.

The first game two weeks ago saw some veteran players injure themselves as a result of which a lot of younger players who do not have as much experience stepped up.

Grade 12 player Tanner Ridenour has hyper extended his knee for example.

"We don't know how extensive that injury is. The doctor did say that he might be able to play next week once the swelling comes down but he can't put a lot of weight on there but just my experience as a coach and seeing injuries like these, we would probably be very leery of putting him on the field for a while. I don't want to put him in jeopardy, playing one game is one thing and not being able to walk again is another," said the coach.

Player Brandon Pronk has injured his thumb making it too tender to hold the ball, Andrew Greeve has hurt his knee. Player Jonah Moody might have a concussion, the coach is waiting to hear back from the doctor.

The competition will be fierce this year for the team as most of the 12-man league teams have years and years of experience said Richholt.

The games are being filmed so coaches can work with players highlighting the details.

"Our team, although very young, lacking in some veterans, they're determined to learn, these guys are dedicated individuals, coming out every single day, two hours a day, sometimes three hours, maybe the first game didn't get us the win, but these guys are willing to learn, and our future is unbelievably bright," he said.

"Although it wasn't an outlook positive in the game (first game), we have a very positive outlook on our future that these guys are only going to get better every single day," he added.

Donating across borders

Two Serbian women who live in Drayton Valley decided to fundraise and donate

Illanta Lulla
Western Review

Although it may seem far away, the troubles of families in Serbia pulled at heartstrings closer to home, earlier this year.

Serbia faced huge floods earlier this year that left many homes destroyed. Although far from their home country two women living in Drayton Valley decided to do something to help their native people.

With the help from the Drayton Valley Multicultural Association and support from their workplace, two Serbian born women who live in Drayton Valley were able to put together about $700 and help a family back home.

The money raised was able to buy a new washer, refrigerator and kitchen cabinets for the Popovic family in Serbia.

"It was very touchy. I feel so full. How we happened to start this was when I first heard, I started a fundraiser at Intercon Messaging where I work, with just a box with information, to give as much as you can. Even if it's a dollar, that dollar would buy several loafs of bread to a family in Serbia," said Ana Maljkovik last week.

Contact was made with local multicultural association president Amila Gammana soon after and a barbecue on June 13 was arranged at the Super 8 Hotel.

"It's nice when you see that you can help someone and those people, when you see their eyes, they're looking at you, that you're giving I don't know what, and actually when I said to them, I know it's not so much and they were like no, no, no it's a lot because no one is taking care of them," said Natasa Bizic who visited Serbia in July and met the family who the duo decided to help.

The two were busy fundraising and thinking of ways to make sure the money got to someone who could really use it. Bizic was planning to go to Serbia for a visit, and it was decided that she would take the money with her. She contacted a local shelter there who helped her find a family.

Maljkovik said they searched online to find out their donation options but found some of the links had fraudulent accounts.

"There is a lot of non-government organizations in Serbia that do that kind of stuff, we thought it was better than giving money to an account and not knowing who we helped, we got this going," she added.

"The donation from Natasa and Ana helped the Popovic family a lot because the fridge, washer and the kitchen parts in their house were destroyed. Among this they lost all the other things the family had in the house during the flood. The family until then hasn't got any help from anywhere," said Marko Tosic who works at the shelter in an e-mail written in Serbian language that was translated by Maljkovik.

He explained the floods affected a lot of towns and municipalities on the territory of whole Serbia, and one of them was Smederevska Palanka (name of the town where Popovic family lives, an hour from capital Belgrade). A large number of households were completely destroyed. The soccer club "Jasenica" in Smederevska Palanka was completely destroyed.

The Popovic family members are father Bojan, mother Brankica, one-year-old daughter Lara, and Bojan's parents Gordana and Ljubinko, he said.

The Canadian money raised equalled to 54,600 Serbian Dinar. The kitchen cabinets cost 12,000 dinar, regrigerator cost was 14,990 dinar and the washer cost was 27,610 dinar.

Fire Services briefs

EXTERIOR FIRE EXTINGUISHED BEFORE SPREADING

On Sept. 3 around 12:10 p.m. Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services were dispatched to the report of a fire on a back deck at a residence in town.

Individuals at the residence were able to get the fire out before the fire services arrived on scene. The cause of the fire, which started on the deck before extending to an exterior wall, is still under investigation.

That fire was one of five calls for service received by the department between Sept. 3-10.

Crews were at the intersection of 50 St. north and Hwy 22 for a two-vehicle collision that happened around 6:30 p.m. on Sept. 5.

One person had to be extricated and taken to hospital as the result of a collision between a compact car and a minivan.

In the early morning hours of Sept. 6 emergency services were called to the report of a quad rollover in the Blue Rapids Recreation Area. Locating the scene of the collision was difficult for responding emergency services, as it was close to an access road not commonly used to access the recreation area.

Later that day, around 1 p.m., members of the fire services were the first on scene after a woman was run over by a tractor. The woman had started the tractor, but wasn't seated on it. The tractor, which was in gear at the time rolled over her. Firefighters assisted EMS and created a landing zone for STARS, which airlifted the woman to hospital with several broken bones.

The week rounded out with a residential alarm call in the Rocky Rapids area. It turned out the alarm had been set off by cooking.

DON'T HINDER HYDRANT ACCESS

Residents who choose to park in front of fire hydrants are impeding access to a vital tool for firefighters and adding to the time it takes for crews to start combating a fire.

Vehicles blocking access to fire hydrants means fire vehicles, some of which are 25-30 feet in length, have to stage farther away. That causes problems of access for other essential vehicles and personnel to get access to the location, such as police and EMS.

The more room left around the critical piece of fire suppression infrastructure by vehicles, the better.

Those parked in areas blocking hydrants can be fined and may lose demerit points if ticketed. In addition to the cost of a possible ticket, those who are parked in front of a hydrant during a fire emergency will not like the consequences.

"In a critical situation access will be gained however necessary," said Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services Captain Will Gueth.

Hydrants are only one thing residents need to be mindful of when it comes to ensuring the fire services and other emergency services can respond quickly and efficiently to situations.

Motorists also need to watch for fire lanes at commercial and public buildings and avoid stopping or parking in them.

"They're not 'wait to pick people up lanes,' said Gueth. "They're fire lanes."

The lanes are identified with signs and, no matter how short a time people plan to be there, are not to be used by vehicles other than emergency services vehicles. Vehicles parked in the designated spots hinder access of emergency vehicles in the event of a fire.

Motorists are also reminded that if they're driving and see emergency vehicles behind them, or approaching them, with lights activated, they need to pull over to the right. Drivers should pull over as quickly as it's safe to do so to clear a path for responding emergency services vehicles to reach their destination as quickly as possible.

TWO YEARS FOR PART IN ROBBERY

A woman has been sentenced to two years in jail for her role in a robbery earlier this year.

Last week in Drayton Valley Provincial Court Joyelle Kerr pleaded guilty for her part in a break in and robbery that took place on Jan 19.

On that day police responded to a break in and robbery in Drayton Valley where an individual was shot. Kerr was present as part of the robbery and the break-in and was in Drayton Valley for that sole purpose, said the Crown prosecutor. However, she was not present when the gun was fired.

Kerr also pleaded guilty for breaching a curfew condition out of Whitecourt on June 13 when she was not in her residence.

The Crown was seeking a sentence of 24 months for the robbery and another 20 days for the breach. Kerr's lawyer agreed with the submission and told the court Kerr has been struggling with a drug addiction.

Judge Marilyn White noted Kerr had committed a serious offence and must have substantial jail time. She was sentenced to 30 days of jail time for her breach of condition in addition to the two years for the robbery.

FINE FOR MISCHIEF

A man will pay for an act of admitted stupidity from last year.

On Oct. 24, 2013 a man crashed into a tree in a residential area and fled the scene. Last week the court heard that person was identified as Allen Rosychuk by witnesses to the collision. In addition, while he was fleeing the collision scene he hit another tree.

He was found outside a hotel in Drayton Valley. He called 9-1-1 and reported that his truck was stolen. But his truck keys were found in his pocket.

His counsel told the court Rosychuk is a single parent to his daughter who has a two-year-old daughter. He added that his client admits that it was a "stupid" act and was ready to pay a fine between $2,500 to $4,500 for what he did.

Rosychuk apologized and admitted his actions were stupid, when he had a chance to address the [redacted].

Judge Marilyn White said she appreciated that he apologized, but noted that public mischief is a concern in the community. It takes time away from officers and is a nuisance, she noted.

She imposed a fine of $3,000.

Riding against cancer

More than 25 cyclists stopped in Drayton Valley last week

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

There were more cyclists in town last week than just those taking on the challenge of the DV 100.

Cyclists in matching shirts that said Cancervive were visible with their bikes and helmets eating cheese and drinking wine at the Holiday Inn on Sept. 11.

Cancervive, an organization from Calgary, had 27 riders start a journey from Edmonton with a four day itinerary and a final destination of Calgary.

On their first day, they were en route to Drayton Valley where they were welcomed by the DV100 organizing committee setting up a wine and cheese evening.

"We just arrived from Edmonton to here in Drayton Valley and our riders did a 164 km ride today and this was day one. So tomorrow we go from here, Drayton Valley to Rocky Mountain House and then on day three we are going to go to Sundre to Cochrane to Calgary so that would conclude our four-day ride, a total of 430 km," said Cancervive General Manager Peggy Pankhurst-Brosens.

"Everybody drove in a van from Calgary to Edmonton and we were riding this morning and we will go to one town to the other and we will finish in Calgary on Sunday," she added.

While on their way they were hoping to raise awareness and funds that will go to Wellspring, a community support centre for cancer patients.

Each rider was to raise $2,500 minimum with Peggy hoping for about $75,000 in total by the end.

"We raise funds, so we put the bike ride on, each rider has to raise funds, and all those funds go to support programs and services at Wellspring," she said.

The DV 100 organizing committee extended the invitation for a meet and greet so everyone could celebrate a common interest.

"We decided to invite them because they're a biking group and we're a biking group so we wanted for them to feel welcome to Drayton Valley and we thought what better way, and then to also promote DV100," said Julie Mulligan of the DV100 organizing committee.

The riders usually go to the U.S., but going around Alberta has helped raise more awareness, said Pankhurst-Brosens.

"We've always done bike rides but we always go to States, but with us staying in Alberta we're getting a lot more publicity and awareness. People know about it more, we had some media coverage in Edmonton, all our vans have our logos on, so we're kind of hoping people will ask, 'Hey what are you guys doing?' and stuff like that," she said.

Local dignitaries also joined in on the small gathering to make the cyclists feel welcome in the community.

Creating a world of opportunities for local youth

Rotary exchange program sends student abroad for one year

Lesley Allan
Western Review

For roughly eight years students from Drayton Valley have had the opportunity to explore the world and discover other cultures thanks to the Rotary International Youth Exchange Program.

Around the globe approximately 20 countries take part in the program that sees students spend a year abroad, attending school and living life within communities. In the past local youth have visited countries such as Norway, Sweden, Germany, as well as Mexico, and once again local Rotary members are looking to select a candidate for this once in a life time opportunity.

> "it furthers the attitude of the Rotary Club and that's to be active, to be involved, to do good things in the world.
> — Elaine Tamboline

"The success (of the program locally) has been very good, the students that are selected, it's really hard to choose because we have such strong community minded young people in our community," says Elaine Tamboline, outbound youth exchange counsellor.

"It furthers the attitude of the Rotary Club and that's to be active, to be involved, to do good in the world. These students are going to go and meet people from around the world," she continues. "We've got one student just back from a year in Sweden and she ended up touring quite a bit of Europe on her exchange, meeting lots of people, going to other Rotary meetings. It opens doors to the world and the good people can do."

Highlighting some of the expectations Rotary has of the youth that are considered for the program, Tamboline explains that characteristics they look for in the youth selected include demonstrating leadership in their school and community, willingness to try new things, and openness to cultural differences.

"We want them to be successful," she says. "We want them to go away, enjoy and benefit from a Rotary exchange year, [but] we want them to also be very good representatives for the Rotary Club of Drayton Valley, our Town of Drayton Valley, our province, and our country. They are our Canadian representative to another country for a year."

According to Tamboline, another requirement for the local offering of the program is that students be between the ages of 16 and 17, a unique requirement from other areas that offer the program from 15 to 19 years of age, the reason for this is to help the youth transition back into society after a year of adapting to another culture.

"[The age limit] is so the student can go away, do their Grade 11 in another country and come home to finish their Grade 12 and integrate back into our educational system, their families and their communities before they go off to college or university," she says.

For those who consider it, the idea of travelling across the globe alone and leaving everything you're familiar with behind for a year can be overwhelming, but Tamboline says with the support of not just those who are involved with the program, but also Rotary itself, students have nothing to worry about.

"We've got 6,000 students around the world participating in this program," she says. "In Rotary International the group consists of hundreds of thousands of people so they have huge support and many eyes watching them while they're away."

According to Tamboline the exchange program is a three year commitment, in part because Rotary wants to ensure youth are prepared for the trip but also so students can meet the requirements of the program and share their experiences with other.

To learn about what it takes to be involved in the Rotary International Youth Exchange contact Tamboline by calling (780) 542-1574, or visit www.rotary.org/en/youth-exchanges.

An information session will be held at the beginning of October, with the candidate that will be travelling expecting to be chosen by the end of October.

25th season for local Toastmasters

Open house this Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Check in the Western Review

With the goal to support life-long learning, personal development, leadership and communication skills, Drayton Valley's own Derrick Toastmasters, will be celebrating its 25th year of service to the community. This local club is one of 14,600 clubs worldwide teaching and developing communication and leadership skills to over 313,000 members.

Each weekly meeting is a learn-by-doing workshop in which participants hone their speaking and leadership skills in a no-pressure, self-paced atmosphere. There is no instructor in a Toastmasters meeting. Instead, peer group processes ensure that each member gets the most [illegible] meeting.

Members include a diverse group of people wanting to get ahead and develop their skills as leaders, gain more confidence in speaking, and in some situations, practice their English language skills.

"The diversity of our members is key to our meetings being full of fun and laughter, and provides great learning opportunities," say club president Marc Haine. "Some people think that Toastmasters is a stodgy, formal affair. But that can't be further from the truth. The fellowship, camaraderie and laughter create a really great way to learn."

Upon joining, each member receives two manuals, the Competent Communicator Manual, and the Competent Leadership Manual. By following the projects outlined in the manuals, members get to develop and practice new skills in a proven, systematic approach. In addition, members can volunteer to take meeting roles, which help hone and develop their leadership skills.

"Anyone needing more confidence, or wanting to do better at work, in school, or in job interviews can benefit from the program offered by Toastmasters International," says Haine.

The Derrick Toastmasters meets every Wednesday evening from 7 to 8:30 p.m., and will be holding an open house, and the annual general meeting of the 2014/2015 year, this Wednesday, September 17, at 7 p.m. The kick off will happen at the club's new home in the NorQuest College campus (formerly the Pembina Educational Consortium), located on 50 St. Refreshments will be served, and guests are welcome to attend. For more information, call Marc Haine at 780-729-4932.

Toastmasters International is a non-profit educational organization that teaches public speaking and leadership skills through a worldwide network of meeting locations. Headquartered in Rancho Santa Margarita, California, the organization's membership exceeds 313,000 in more than 14,600 clubs in 122 countries. Since 1924, Toastmasters International has helped people of all backgrounds become more confident in front of an audience. AIRDRIE TEEN EARNS NATIONAL AWARD

Airdrie Echo

Airdrie's teen anti-bullying advocate has landed herself a national award.

MacKenzie Murphy, 14, has won the Canadian Living Me to We Award in the category of Social Action, awarded to someone who has made a difference in their community.

"I'm quite flabbergasted to be completely honest," said the Grade 10 student. "Two years ago I didn't think I would be alive and now to have all of Canada choose me (is unbelievable)."

Murphy was the victim of bullying at school and online while a middle school student and attempted to take her life in December 2012.

Fed up with her bullies and the impact they were having on herself, friends and others she had only heard about, Murphy contacted Mayor Peter Brown on Facebook and then in person to discuss her concerns.

Over several months, she, along with her mom Tara, worked with the City to create an anti bullying bylaw for Airdrie.

That bylaw received final approval in September of 2013.

It was a huge win for Murphy, then 13, but not the last the public was to see of the teen.

Since then Murphy has met with several decision makers, including the former Premier Alison Redford, MLA Sandra Jansen, MP Blake Richards and Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi.

She was thrilled when Richards' tweet — urging others to vote for Murphy for the Me to We award — was retweeted by Prime Minister Stephen Harper.

Murphy has been part of anti-bullying discussions both in Airdrie and other communities and has been asked to speak in local schools about her experience.

She is also an ambassador for the Amanda Todd Legacy, something she plans to continue.

As a winner of the prestigious award, Murphy received $3,000 for the charity of her choice.

She plans to put the money towards the Amanda Todd Legacy, which was started by someone who has become a close family friend.

Carol Todd, the mother of Amanda Todd, who committed suicide in October 2012 after enduring years of bullying.

She will receive her award onstage at We Day in Toronto later this month — in front of 24,000 people. She is also being featured in the latest edition of Canadian Living magazine.

But winning the award hasn't dampened Murphy's determination to make a difference.

Murphy said her ongoing goal is to help others overcome the mental anguish of being bullied.

"I want to focus on the lifelong hurt that comes out of bullying," she said.

Murphy said although the bullies are still out there, she is a much stronger person because of her experiences.

"It has definitely changed who I am," she said. "I am better able to cope with (bullies) now. I am better able to deal with the feelings."

Mom Tara is very proud of her daughter.

"I'm literally taken aback by how something that could have been tragic has turned out to be so positive," she said. "When I hear someone talk about (MacKenzie), I think 'that's my baby.'"

CENTURY-OLD ROADSTER RETRACE EARLY CALGARY-EDMONTON ROUT

Leduc Rep

Two local antique car enthusiasts recently recreated a bygone piece of Canadian and Albertan motoring history.

Ray Fowler of Leduc County and Pat McKenna of Edmonton took to some of the province's oldest and at times forgotten roadways in an equally old Canadian-made antique cars in an attempt to, as closely as possible, travel the route recommended in a 100-year-old road guide that motorists in the 1910s would have taken between Calgary and Edmonton.

Fowler, who lives just south of Leduc with his wife Lynn, and Mckenna were joined by Lynn and friend and musician Jerry Huck. All were dressed in full 1910s motorist dress, adding another layer of authenticity to the Aug. 18-21 trip, which began at the Palliser Hotel in Calgary, also celebrating a 100-year anniversary in 2014.

NEWS

More news from around Alberta

PIP from pg. 31

The idea for the trip came after Fowler read an article on the Calgary Automobile Club. After some research he and McKenna dug up the club's road guide, first produced in 1914, which featured detailed directions including such minute details as names with telephones and locations of hardware stores along the way for driving from Calgary to Edmonton.

"Being a car buff, and I love history, I thought you know, the 100th anniversary of this is coming up, and I have a 100-year-old automobile. Wouldn't it be a great adventure to try to follow that original route 100 years later in a 100-year-old car and see how close you can come to the actual route?" Fowler said.

The centrepieces of the journey were the cars themselves. Fowler's 1914 McLaughlin Buick Model B25 and McKenna's 1914 Studebaker Model SD4, both originally made in Ontario factories, carried the travellers as well as the necessary equipment drivers of that era would have required for the trip, from tools to camping gear.

With a documentary crew, local media and onlookers in tow, they were set for a historic journey.

And then it almost ended before it even began. Fowler and McKenna expected a few breakdowns along the way, but the first came almost immediately, as one of the McLaughlin's wheels buckled just as they left the Pelliser for Calgary City Hall, the trip's official starting point.

"I heard this crack and I looked behind me and I went, 'What the hell?' I had worked on this wheel before we left because it was loose. I tightened it up, which was probably not the best thing to do, because these old cars like to move a bit, so I backed up and the wheel just exploded," Fowler said.

Luckily, some other local car club members helped Fowler and crew find and install a replacement wheel, and a day later they were on their way.

More breakdowns were to come. Travelling largely on range roads, as well as a few fragments of 1914 roads that more resembled dirt paths, the group dealt with flat tires, rain storms and getting stuck in sloughs, among other problems, all afflicting the McLaughlin.

"The Studebaker hung in there like it was bullet-proof," Fowler said.

Not that they minded all that much. For the travellers, it was all a part of an authentic recreation of the early history of automobile transportation.

"All the things that happened would've happened back in 1914. Those are the kinds of things that happened when you travelled," he said. "And I'm glad it happened."

Fowler and McKenna have taken similar trips in the past, including a much longer New York to San Francisco trip in a 1930 Chevy on the original 1908 route. In a few years they're hoping to make a trip from Alberta to the east coast.

When the foursome arrived in Leduc they decided to check out something a bit more modern, stopping by the Leduc Schwab Buick dealership for a quick comparison of 100 years advancement in car design and technology.

"We parked in front of the building and put the two cars head to head. Looks like a dinosaur and something from the future."

CALGARY HUNTER KILLED IN K-COUNTRY

The Crag and Canyon

Tragedy has befallen a Calgary hunter, killed by a mother grizzly bear during a hunting trip in Kananaskis Country over the weekend.

After more than a day of searching after he was reported missing, the hunter was found and Mounties and other searchers' worst fears were confirmed.

Wrong place and wrong time, Kananaskis RCMP Const. Virgil Birz said — the hunter had done nothing wrong, he just crossed the path of a grizzly feeling protective of both her cub and a recent deer kill.

Birz said the hunter was in the Picklejar Creeks area Saturday after bighorn sheep. Family reported him missing the following morning.

The search had to be called off due to darkness on Sunday and resumed first thing Monday. But they already had some idea of the hunter's fate.

"Searching (Monday) revealed some of the hunter's property ... [and that] he may have suffered injuries," Birz said, adding that's when they also discovered the mother bear and her baby, and the deer.

"Property was located in two areas quite separate from each other.

"Whether he survived the attack or didn't, it was a priority that we found him.

It's estimated [we found him] a couple of hundred metres from where his rifle was located."

Family, waiting for word back in Calgary, has been notified of the tragic turn of events.

It's that time of year, Birz said, where grizzlies are in protective "get food now" mode.

"And in Kananaskis Country, bears are absolutely everywhere — we have quite a large quantity of known grizzly bears and also unknown grizzly bears."

Birz said that Parks officials were meeting Tuesday to determine the fate of the grizzly bear.

"Conservations officers and Parks staff are meeting (Tuesday) and they're going to be looking over the totality of the circumstances and deciding the fate of the offending bear," he said.

"Because of the nature of the attack and the common triggers for a bear attack - a cub and a food stash — it might have been a wrong place, wrong time kind of thing. We're not convinced that this might actually be a dangerous bear. They'll be deciding that (Tuesday) I think."

Meanwhile, a bear closure for the area remains in effect — the area was initially closed off as the search was in progress.

| Rodney Wilson | Melvoy Seely |
| Jan. 1, 1962 – Sept. 19, 2007 | Mar. 6, 1937 – Sept. 18, 2006 |

Right now I'm in a different place,
And though we seem apart,
I'm closer than I ever was
I'm there inside your heart
I'm with you when you greet each day
And while the sun shines bright,
I'm there to share the sunsets, too
I'm with you every night.
I'm with you when the times are good,
To share a laugh or two,
And if a tear should start to fall...
I'll still be there for you.
And when that day arrives
That we no longer are apart,
I'll smile and hold you close to me
Forever in my heart
Give each other a hug from us until we see you again

LOVE & MISS YOU,
Claudia, Larry, Crystal
& Trina

In the house where you used to be
We wanted so much to keep you
But God willed it not to be
Now you are in God's keeping
You suffer no more pain
So dear God take care of him
Until we meet again
Love forever and missed always,

December 22, 1983 - September 18, 2009

You Meant So much

You meant so much to all of us
You were Special and thats no lie
You brightened up the darkest day
And clouded it shy
Your smile alone warmed hearts.
Your laugh was like music to hear
I would give anything absolutely to have you well and standing near Not a second passes
when you're not on our minds
Your love we will never forget
The hurt will ease in time
Many tears I have seen and cried
They have all poured out like rain
I know [illegible] you, are blessed
Cause Angles only take the Best

May 28, 1953 – September 21, 2009

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend
that grief can call its own;
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.

Forever in our hearts

SUDOKU

Here's How it Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The luxury of good drapery

Your drapery can play a big role in the feel of a room

Cheryll Gillespie
Special to QMI Agency

Cheryll Gillespie

It never ceases to amaze me how much drapery adds to a room. Last week, we installed drapery at two client homes and blinds at one client's house and, upon completion, I was awestruck at what a difference a little fabric makes to a space.

In a room, drapery is essential for two main purposes: first is to soften and define the space and the second is to frame a view. Let's chat about the first. Drapery gives us the opportunity to add another texture to our room, perhaps a soft sheer, rough linen or even distressed velvet. Ask yourself what atmosphere is desired in the space and choose accordingly.

Typically, a soft luxurious sheer will add a feminine touch and even a sense of romance to a room; conversely distressed velvet is more masculine and intimate just as a natural rough line will instil a sense of formality.

We all love a great view and drapery will enhance a good view by drawing the eye to the window. You can also hide a bad view by using drapery to cover the window and let our imaginations picture the fabulous view that must be outside.

Well-designed drapery can hide offset or ill-placed windows, elongate a wall or give height to a low ceiling. Drapery is a valuable designer tool.

How do we choose the perfect fabric for our windows? Start with colour. Typically I keep the drapery in tune with the room's colour palette, more specifically the wall colour. If you're choosing blinds, then choose a colour that matches the window frame or the wall colour if it is a neutral. On feature walls, go with the window frame colour.

When you are selecting the fabric for blinds or drapery, start with the function of the window coverings – do you need them to darken the room? Are they required to block out or soften strong UV rays? Or are they simply for aesthetic reasons? This will help you to decide. Choose the fabric that best suits the ambiance of the room.

Choose your curtains with care

GILLESPIE from pg. 48

Now the rods, finials and brackets — have fun because there are so many fabulous decorative choices, including whimsical finials such as bird or monkey brackets to hold up the rod. There are also luxurious crystal finials or handsome carved wood and marble motifs.

How far off the floor do we want the drapery? Typically one half to one quarter of an inch off the floor is perfect unless you want a casual puddle of fabric.

Fall is the perfect time to take your rooms to the next level and hang some window coverings. Well-made drapery is a true luxury and all part of living fabulously.
